Let's Speak Chinese

Fact 1: The number of K-12 public school students in the United States learning a Chinese language rose to nearly 60,000 in 2008, from about 20,000 in 2005, according to a report from the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages.

Fact2: Jim Rogers, an American investor once said: "Everyone, especially young people should learn to speak Mandarin..."

CLC offers your Child...

Not just a typical language class, but a journey that would have a strong impact on your child in the future!

- . Learning targeted words found in children's everyday lives. . Pinyin system will be applied
